Mrs. Margaret Schwartz, Whose Dress Caught from a Bonfire, Will Die Artist George and Reicke May Lose His Eyesight.

TWO OTHERS BADLY BURNED.

Mrs. Margaret Schwartz, forty-one years old, of No. 91 Hinsdale avenue, ooklyn, is dying in the Bedford Street Hospital as the result of terrible burns she received after her clothing caught fire to-day. Three other persons, inassist her, are also severely burned, one o badly that blindness may result.

Mrs. Schwartz and her husband, William, a retired chair manufacturer, occupied a large frame house surrounded by a broad yard. She was preparing to move to-day and took a quantity of rub-bish into the back yard, where she started a fire. As the debris blazed up the flames shot out and caught the obtained. em of the thin, loose wrapper she wore. endeavored to beat out the fire with her mands. Then in a frenzy of pain she beran to run about the yard.

Hugged the Burning Woman.

Miss Louise Ashman, who was visiting Mrs. Schwartz, heard her cries and hed into the yard. She caught the blazing woman in her arms and endeavored to quench the flames by hugging her closely. In doing so her own clothing took fire, and as a quantity of lace on her waist blazed up Mrs. Schwartz's bair caught. .

He also lost his head and endeavored to help his wife by pressing her in his arms. But by this time she was a seething pillar of fire, and he only succeeded in beating out her blazing hair, when his clothing caught and he was compeled to fall to the ground also and roll about to put

Threw Blanket from Her,

This had all occupied but a few minutes and when George Reicke, an artist, of No. 87 Hinsdale avenue, went an, he seized a blanket from a couch and rushed out of the house. He imendeavored to throw the blanket over her. By this cime, however, the woman was mad with pain and threw the blanket away. He endeavored a second time to get it around her, but she ran from him into the street. He followed and tried sgain and again to get the blanket about her. Each time she beat him off. In his struggles with her his clotting had also taken fire, but, regardless of the flames that were consuming his hair and beard, he continued in his efforts to aid her.

Mrs. Schwartz and the artist ran for several blocks and soon the entire neighborhood was aroused. A dozen men set buckets of water and raced after the rurning couple. Mrs. Schwartz outran them until she fell unconscious to the sidewalk. Then water was poured over her and the blaze extinguished. Her hair had burned close to her head and her face was blackened and scarred beyond recognition. Other bucket brigades had put out the flames in the Significant of the awful loss of life and damage to property caused by the overflow of the Missouri and Kaw rivers at Kansas City is the ablaze. She screamed frantically and fact that the catastrophe occurred on the fourteenth anniversary of the Johnstown flood.

It was on the afternoon of May 31, 1889, that the waters of the Conemaugh River, swollen by continued thunder storms, broke the South Fork Dam, above the ill-fated city of Johnstown, and rushed like a tidal wave upon the busy city and its 17,000 inhabitants.

In Grand View Cemetery, on the top of the mountain, overlooking the Conemaugh Valey, down which swept the wave of death, the bodies of 2,300 victims are sleeping to-day—an awful reminder of this country's greatest flood disaster. President Roosevelt telegraphed to-day from Cheyenne to Gov. Bailey offering the assistance of the Federal authorities if needed, as follows: "Cheyenne, Wyo., May 31. 'Hon. W. J. Bailey, Topeka, Kan.:

"Am inexpressibly shocked at reports of dreadful calamity that has befallen Topeka. If there is anything the Federal authorities can do, of course let me know.

27 SWEPT TO DEATH ON A BIG BRIDGE.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 1.-The great catastrophe of the flood here was the drowning of twenty-seven men, who were swept to death when the Union Pacific bridge over the Kaw went down.

The brige was a steel structure, ballasted with 150,000 pounds The river swept against it, but it was thought to be so strong as to be impregnable, and sightseers crowded it throughout Sunday afternoon watching to the window of his studio, attracted by the cries of the burning women and occasional human being sweeping beneath its arches.

Fortunately, the driving rain that came just at nightfall dispersed the morbid sightseers, but watchers on the bluffs counted twenty-seven men when the bridge began to sway. Before its human freight could escape it broke from its moorings and overturned. The big steel structure buckied and disappeared from view in the foam of the raging water sweeping over it.

No attempt was made at rescue. The victims were swept out of sight into the swift current.
